rm -r comic: One off comic, by Gary Marks

Making a comic is an intricate, four step process.

Step 1. Stare at the blank paper for inspiration.

Step 2. Keep staring, because you haven't thought of anything yet.

Step 3. Look at the clock and swear a lot when you realize that the comic was supposed to be up 2 hours ago.

Step 4. Scribble down something strange and vague so people think you're actually making a joke.

It's hilarious, isn't it? Moo. Get it? Moo! LOL!

A comic book convention can be an awe inspiring and strenuous event. If not planned well, an attendee may, collapse from exhaustion, get crushed by a pile of merchandise, or worst of all, miss a comic that they've been looking for.

rm-r-comic.com presents: "Surviving Comic Book Conventions". August 2011. All rights reserved. Any relation to any persons living or dead is purely coincidental. For more information, please contact Gary Marks at rm-r-comic.com

2011-08-18

When booking travel, remember, a hotel is a necessity, not a luxury. Swampyman might be your favorite character, but that doesn't mean you should smell like him.

The next thing you should do is plan and strategize. A good attendee knows all the possible paths they can take well before they ever enter the convention center.

2011-08-20

One should also remember to wear comfortable shoes. To fail to do so often leads to what seems like an eternity of painful regret.

2011-08-21

Now that you're inside the convention center, it's time for a little quiet reconnoiter.

Chicago comic con, page7

2011-08-22

During your first pass through the convention center, you should mark down every point of interest on a map, so you know what to come back to throughout the weekend.

After reconnoitering the whole convention, one should begin their surgical strikes to acquire their items of interest.

2011-08-25

Now, if there's something you simply MUST have, ignore the preparation and act in a flash. If you trust your heart, impulse buying can be one of the greatest of things.

2011-08-26

If all goes well, you'll end up with several cherished treasures, and the convention will have been a crushing success.

2011-08-27

If followed to a tee, this guide should have brought you an exceptional success in your convention experience.

What's your code base look like?

by Gary Marks

I have this beautiful Porsche you can buy. Just ignore the Yugo engine. No one ever notices that anyways.

Turn that frown upside down, and then stand on your head. There, perfect

CANDY! CANDY! CANDY! CANDY! CANDY!

It's not nice to remind me, er I mean, others, of their short comings!

Don't hate me because I'm beautiful.

The squeaky wheel gets the grease, and we all want to be greased up, so squeek.

Yours is shorter. I mean the line your in, before you send me hate mail.

I'm all charged up and ready to go for Halloween, well, maybe I am.

We have to talk about why you're holding out on me. Where's the free candy at?

It's not my fault it's so small, it's cold out in October.

Here, let me pop in another, it's called Audition. I think it's a love story about an up and coming movie actress.

"Don't drop the knife! Don't run into the forest! Don't go near that creepy dead looking kid! Don't drop the soap! Don't shoot your eye out!" So when DO I get to do something?

BOOM! Head shot!

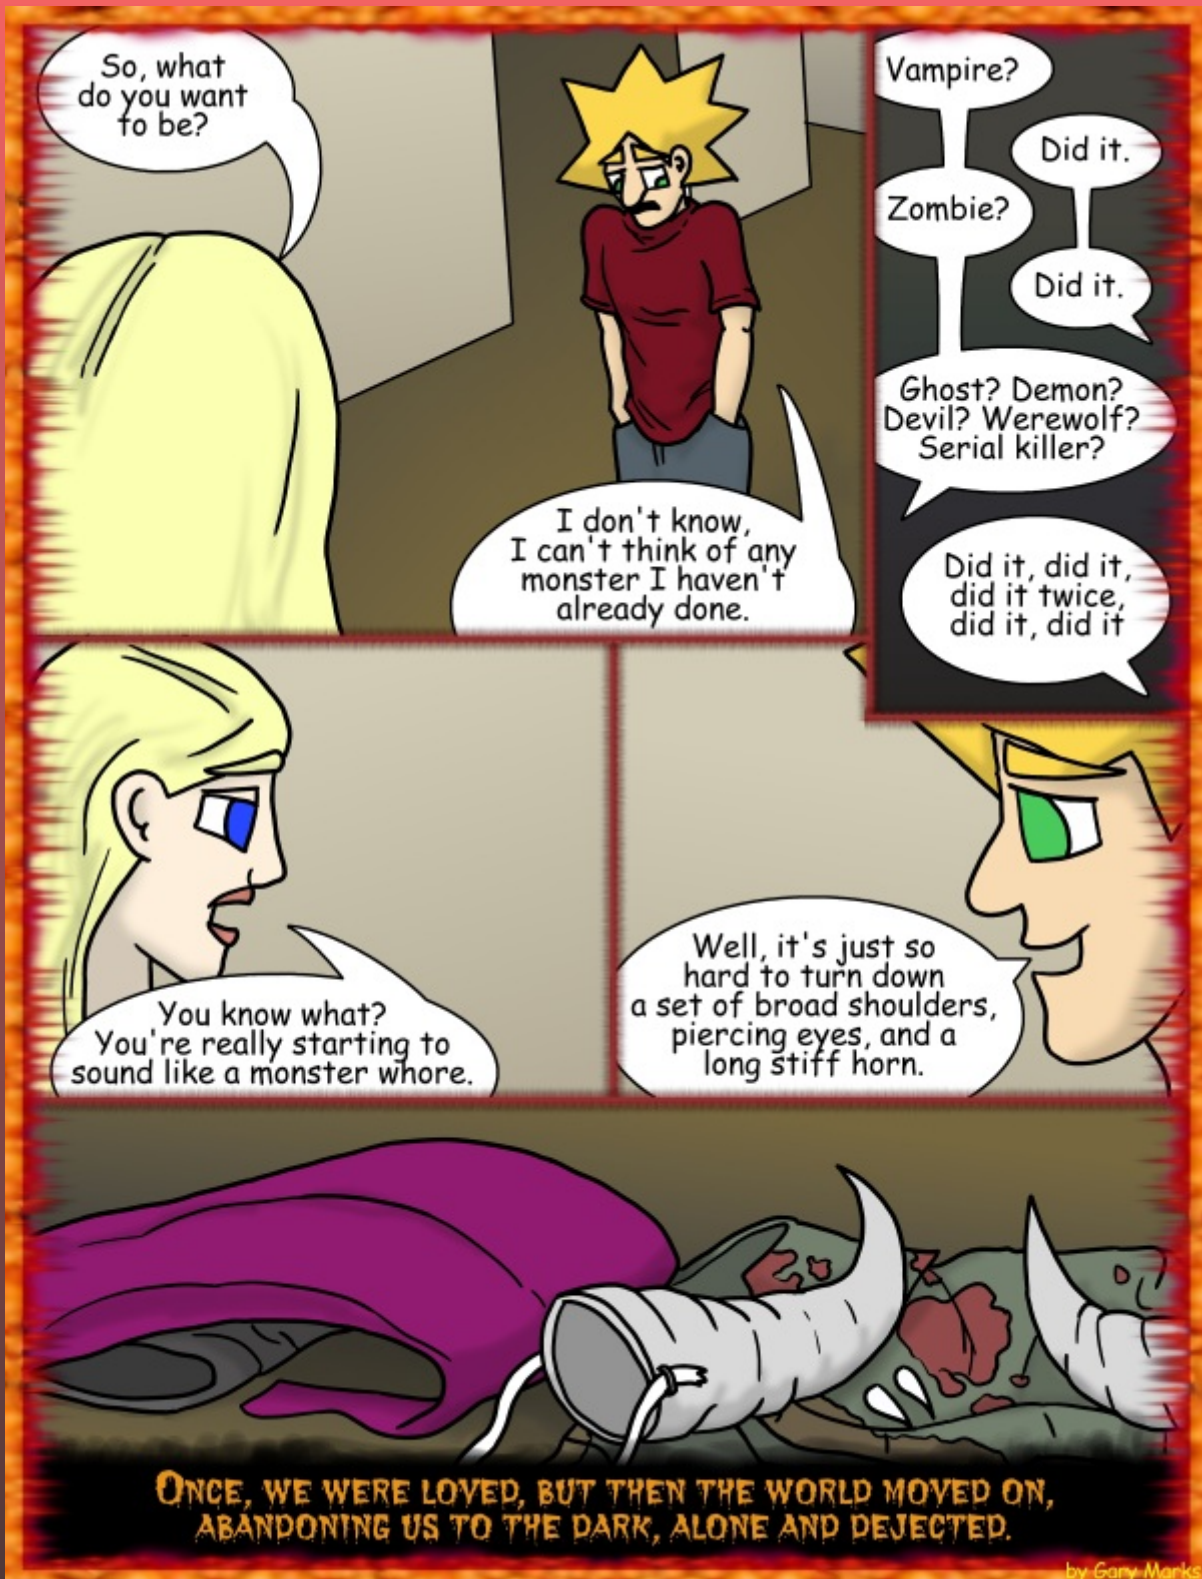

Was it one box or two that I started with? Eh, doesn't matter, I mean.. it's not like I lit them, or did I?

T and T! Much better than T or T.

It's OK though, I mean who doesn't like playing with oneself in the dark?

But I couldn't figure out how to make robotic legs, so this seemed like the next best thing.

BUILD YOUR DEFENSES. THEY WON'T KEEP US OUT. WE MAY HAVE BEEN FORGOTTEN, BUT THAT DOES NOT MEAN WE ARE POWERLESS.

by Gary Marks

Guess you don't want that swimming pool I built for Halloween then.

Look. We're cutting edge. Yeah, I went there.

Perhaps I'll just shed my clothes and go as the invisible man. That's how it works, right?

Halloween 2011, 23 of 32
2011-10-23

There's a power generated at the start of an epic party. This power is difficult to identify, but all involved feel it, know it, and embrace it.

It's even been said that if one could harness the power of the party, they could change the world.

by Gary Marks

*Dance like you've never danced before!
So, you mean, "dance well"?*

I must have gotten too excited, give me ten minutes and we can try again.

WE SHALL TAKE THE PRETTY ONE FIRST, FOR SHE INSPIRES HOPE

So then I donned my robe and wizard hat, and I was all like, "You shall not pass, for I am Gorgon the grey, and all shall run in fear of my mighty magic missile!"

And then, I rolled a twenty!

A twenty! Hey, why don't I get us some drinks?

Sure.

mmmph!

Oh man! Gorgon should've brought a breath mint. Now Gorgon sad.

by Gary Marks

Why are wizards always trying to show me their wooden wands?

NEXT, WE'LL TAKE THE STRONG ONE, FOR IT WOULD NOT DO US WELL TO BE HACKED DOWN BY SO GREAT A WARRIOR.

So there I was, surrounded by spider riflemen, and I'm all like, "Forget this! GRONK SMASH!"

So I hit all my buffs, and agro the whole screen. I use my earth quake power to shake the whole screen, wiping all of them out.

When all the dust clears, I see that I wiped out the entire room, and only moved one step to the left throughout all of it.

The next day at work, the designer comes in screaming, "THIS PAGE IS ALL WRONG! It's ONE pixel off to the right!" So I turn to him and say, "No worry puny human! GRONK SMASH site one pixel to left!" It was then that I realized that I didn't want to program any more. I'm gonna go grab another, anyone want anything?

What the hell Jacob?! You leave your anime on agai...

Like when coding, it's important to remember one thing when training...

Stop running with that, you'll poke someone's heart out.

There are several things that should be banned as inhumanly cruel:

- Torture
- Figuring out one's own income tax
- Six inches of leg room on planes
- Having to support six browsers when coding
- And the worst of all of them:
- Taunting a gamer with a play button before a game is ready

So, Would you like to get something to eat tonight?

I wish I could, but I've got a prior engagement.

Hey Sam, come back to bed.

You know you want to eat some more

Oh. If you insist. After all, I am still hungry.

As winter falls,

all seems cold, bleak,

*empty, desolate, hopeless,
and lifeless,*

*but, if one looks close,
they'll see, a spark, a spark of hope that all should hold dear.*

by Gary Marks

Don't look at me like that, it's cold out.

rm -r comic: The three Js

Let us look in on Jacob and see if, on this holiday, he too can find that spark.

Are you ready to head out?

But it's cold out there.

Couldn't we just stay in and game?

Fine. Fine. Quest accepted, let me gather up my gold pieces. If only I got double xp for this.

But look, it's snowing in my game, isn't that good enough?

So, spare any change for a lonely old man?

Sure. IF you can answer three questions.

One. Who does your hair?

Slum'n bum'n sally.

Interesting. I'll have to see if she has a six o'clock free. Question two, what is your favorite color?

Blue.. No! Green!

That was close, but well done, and now, the final question. How did you get out of visiting family today?

Get out of it? I'd love to visit my family, but I ain't got one. I do miss them something fierce over the holidays though. The singing, the eating, the fighting, the caring... especially the eating.

Wow! You remember that?!

Of course I do, we're family.

Oh yeah... I remember that. That was great!

Hah! I can't believe we're still alive!

Never again man. Never again. Though it was pretty fun at the time.

Yeah, who would've thought it'd all fit?
